Status Updates

The 2012 Rack card has been completed, ordered, received and distributed. I have included a copy of what was designed by committee member Gaye Wolfe and myself. For the future we can add to Review and Revision of Rack Card to the Committee Calendar - addressing updates and/or changes annually at the regular meeting in February of each year. After seeing it in actually print Gaye stated there were a few things that she would have done differently. But we have a template we can work from now.

The Mayor has requested the Tillion painting of Horses on the Spit and the Homer Pennock picture to be hung back in Council Chambers. Ms. Wolfe came and selected the location of the back wall near the entrance doors for the Homer Pennock and the back wall to the right of the Glacier Sculpture for the Tillion painting. We have received the locking display case and it should be hung by meeting time. This case is pretty nice but the hanging apparatus was a bit weak in staff opinion so maintenance is going to be hanging it by another method using screws through the back of the cabinet. We will have to locate additional artwork to balance the paintings planned for the elevator lobby.

The Committee had agreed to continue participating in the 4th of July parade and we now need a couple of volunteers to walk holding the banner. Ms. Wolfe and her husband did this last year and it would be great to get additional volunteers. You can dress up in spirit of the event or not as you choose. Or develop a theme entry with some additional members of the community. So who will volunteer?!

The timeframe on the application for the grant opportunity that Michele reported on the last meeting was just too short and we did not have any information. I spoke with Katie and she said it would be too difficult to complete all the requirements that submitting a grant application to a Federal agency requires but would be more than happy to assist us the next time around. I also spoke with Marianne and the project is not as developed as would be required for the grant. So next time we can consider applying for a grant.

At the last meeting the Committee determined upon recommendation from Staff to return the Photo Mural back to Mr. Parks with a letter explaining that funding was not available but even more important that there was no appropriate display wall long enough to display the mural in one piece. My schedule hasn't allowed me to get that done but will try to get it accomplished this upcoming month.

MEMORANDUM

TO: PUBLIC ARTS COMMITTEE
FROM: RENEE KRAUSE, CMC, DEPUTY CITY CLERK I
DATE: MAY 11, 2012
RE: CITY HALL OPEN HOUSE EVENT

Background

City Manager Wrede spoke to Council regarding the Open House event and the Committee's desire to be involved in the event.

The Council has given the go ahead for the committee to take the lead in the planning of this event but Council members Wythe and Roberts wish to be included in the planning of the event. Both Councilmembers were on the committee and very involved in the renovation and construction of city hall.

Council was opposed to an all-day event preferring a "stand-alone" evening event.

Council was open to a date that was acceptable to all parties involved. Staff sought input from personnel who worked in the building and it was noted that they would like to wait until all furniture and artwork was hung and each department was "presentable."

Recommendation

Ask for volunteers and form a sub-committee or work on this event as a whole committee. Staff also recommends including a member of the City Hall personnel to be involved in the Open House planning. Determine availability and schedule a meeting within the next month to meet and start the planning process. Request staff to contact Councilmember Wythe and Roberts and get their availability to meet.

Subject: PAC and Open House

Renee:

Last night we talked about the PAC and the proposed City Hall Open House. The Council seemed very much OK with the idea that the PAC would take a lead role in planning the event. Please be sure to include Beth and Francie in the planning since they were such a big part of the building committee. I think it is important to keep in mind that the open house would not just be about the art. It is also a chance for the Council to show the public the new renovations and what it did with taxpayer dollars.

Council did not seem to like the open house all day idea because it would be too disruptive to staff and normal building operations. I think they prefer a stand alone, evening event. Council seemed good with the May 18th date. However, after the meeting adjourned, we received new information about a possible conflict with another big event that evening. It was not clear to me what that event was but it sounded like a major play or a musical or something like that. I believe Jo might have been informed about it also. It might be a good idea to check that out a little further.

Thanks for taking this project on.

MEMORANDUM

TO: PUBLIC ARTS COMMITTEE
FROM: RENEE KRAUSE, CMC, DEPUTY CITY CLERK I
DATE: MAY 11, 2012
RE: GIFT PROPOSAL APPLICATION

Background

Ms. Wolfe has submitted applications for consideration of the Committee for two pieces of her own artwork in response to comments that there is very little "Homer" or "Alaskan" artwork in the city collection.

Upon review and recommendation for approval these will then go before City Council for formal approval and acceptance. The pieces are currently installed in the Planning Department lobby and the main lobby upstairs.

I have included the pages from the Administrative Guidelines that outline the processes for the acceptance of the proposed artwork.

Recommendation

Make a motion to submit recommendation to Council to approve acceptance of the proposed artwork.

Additional Oversight by Public Arts Committee under the 1% program

1. Requests for Proposals
 - a. PAC, with the assistance of staff, will prepare an RFP for each eligible project. (See sample in Exhibit A)
 - b. Staff will circulate the RFP, as required by City code. In addition, PAC will develop a registration system for anyone who wants specific notification of announced RFP opportunities.
 - c. Packets of additional information that describes the project will be available in City Hall and/or online. It will include the brochure, "Special Considerations for Art in Public Places" (See Exhibit B)
2. Establishing Selection Criterion
 - a. PAC will provide each member of the jury with a complete RFP, including the "Special Considerations" brochure. Members will be asked to remember these considerations in their art selections.
 - b. PAC will provide the jury with an Evaluation Checklist (see Exhibit C).
 - c. PAC may specify that certain projects will show a preference for art by local or Alaskan artists.
3. Legal Considerations. The Public Arts Committee is a liaison between artists and the City, the principals in this program. These guidelines will clarify the understanding between them:
 - a. Ownership of the Art: All art purchased under the 1% for Art Ordinance will be owned by the City of Homer.
 - b. Artist's Rights: Public artwork and art concepts will not be altered, modified, removed or moved from a site which is integral to the concept for the work without prior notice to the artist. If the City's best and reasonable efforts to contact the artist have failed, the City may proceed without such notice.
 - c. Artist's Promise to the City of Homer:

The art is unique and original and does not infringe upon any copyright.
Neither the art nor a duplicate has been accepted for sale elsewhere.
The art is free and clear of any liens.
The fabricated and installed art will be free of defects in material and craftsmanship.
Maintenance requirements have been accurately described;
4. Contract with an Artist: The City of Homer will enter into a contract with each artist whose work is selected for inclusion in a City project. It will address description of the project, payment schedule, payment of special engineering or installation costs, due date. (See sample in Exhibit D). (Reso. 10-80, 2011.)

A Note from Shannon

Spring has come to Alaska, and I have been enjoying getting out to experience the cultural richness of our state. I continue to be inspired and impressed by the ways in which the arts impact and strengthen communities across Alaska-this is all due to the good work of our artists, arts organizations, educators and community members who know the importance of the arts. And we can't forget the state of Alaska and its elected officials-their investment in our work makes it all possible!

My goal in the coming year is to visit as many parts of the state as I can, so please let me know if you have any upcoming events or meetings that you would like me to attend. Even though I am a huge proponent of technology, I strongly value the power of being "on the ground," meeting face-to-face with communities to learn about your work, your experiences, and your needs.

I also want to congratulate ASCA's newest (returning) Council member, Kes Woodward, on receiving the Rasmuson Foundation's 2012 Distinguished Artist Award!

Public Art in Alaska's Public Schools

Alaska's rich arts and cultural history is well represented by public art in our schools. The Art in Public Places program was established by the legislature in 1975. The Percent for Art statute (AS 35.27) is the state policy that 1% of appropriations for capital expenditures be set aside for the acquisition of works of art to be used for state buildings and other public facilities, including airports, ferries and schools. For rural schools, the allocation is one half of one percent.

Public art in schools is most successful when planning begins early. If your community is new to the art selection process (or if it's been a few years...), the first step toward a successful public art project is to contact ASCA for guidance on local involvement and current standards in the field of public art administration.

If you have a new project in your community, or you are administering and developing a public art program, ASCA invites you to become connected to a larger statewide public art managers' network. Years of combined experience strengthen the field of public art with networking and exchange between emerging programs and established programs such as the Municipality of Anchorage and Fairbanks North Star Borough. Ultimately, Alaska's public art and artists will benefit through a network of knowledgeable public art professionals around the state!

ASCA and the Municipality of Anchorage both provide resources and public art administrative services to facilitate the art selection process, produce requests for artist qualifications and commission public art.

Rasmuson Individual Artists Awards Announced and What's New in the Art Acquisition Fund

The Rasmuson Foundation has announced the 2012 Individual Artist Awards!

This year, Rasmuson Foundation awarded 26 Project Awards (up to $5,000 each), 10 Artist Fellowship Awards ($12,000 each), and one Distinguished Artist Award ($25,000 in unrestricted funds). Nearly all of this year's winning artists, including the Distinguished Artist recipient, were present at the announcement event held June 5th at the Alaska Center for the Performing Arts. A "virtual" announcement of the Individual Artist Award winners was also conducted in the Second Life Rasmuson Gallery (an Internet-based virtual world).

This is the ninth year Rasmuson Foundation has funded Individual Artist Awards. These awards have provided nearly $1.9 million to 267 practicing Alaska artists, as a long-term investment into the arts and culture of Alaska, the vibrancy of its communities and to art itself.

A full list of the 2012 award recipients is available at the Rasmuson Foundation website: www.rasmuson.org.

RASMUSON FOUNDATION ART ACQUISITION PROGRAM CONTINUES THROUGH JULY

The Rasmuson Foundation and Museums Alaska are pleased to announce funding for the 2012 Art Acquisition Program. Museums Alaska is once again administering this program and will be contacting all Alaska Museums and Alaska Culture Centers to invite them to participate.

WHAT IS NEW in the 2012 Program:

In 2011, the Rasmuson Foundation took the opportunity of reviewing the Art Acquisition program to determine if it was meeting the needs of Alaska artists, museums and culture centers, and the overall goals of the Foundation. As a result, new guidelines and a new application form have been created.

The program has established an application deadline of July 30, 2012. Approval of grants to individual organizations for purchases will take place following the deadline. Any remaining grant funds undistributed following the July 30th deadline will be available for an additional round of applications. Each organization will be notified if another funding opportunity exists.

Guidelines and forms are available from the Project Administrator, Michael Hawfield.

Updated Customs Guide for Alaska Native Arts Introduced

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Alaska State Council on the Arts would like to introduce you to the updated Customs Guide on Alaska Native Arts. Noted as an excellent tool for the Alaska Native art market, the online guide helps artists, arts patrons, and retailers interpret the complex wildlife laws that affect the international trade of Alaska's most precious commodity.

The guide lists wildlife materials commonly used in traditional Alaska Native art. A corresponding table of federal requirements enables residents, visitors, artists, and shops to identify appropriate gifts that may be legally carried home or shipped to various countries. The guide is a critical resource that answers many frequently asked questions about the legitimate use of various wildlife materials in artwork for sale and includes the most current wildlife law fact sheets available.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Alaska State Council on the Arts collaborated to update and provide this reference publication to meet four public service goals:

Support the conservation and sustainability of Alaska's unique natural resources based on established wildlife management laws;

Ensure visitors that their art piece was legally created, sold and transported and can be safely cherished as a memory of their trip to Alaska;

Strengthen Alaska Native artists and Alaska business owners' ability to support international visitors' patronage of Alaska Native artists and their distinctive work;

Expand the general public's knowledge of the laws that govern the purchase and market transportation of protected wildlife materials.

STEAM Institute in Fairbanks Grows out of Community Interest

July 6-13, a partnership between the OneTree Alaska Project at the UAF School of Natural Resources and Agricultural Sciences, Boreal House Art and Science Center and the Fairbanks North Star Borough School District (FNSBSD), will present its first STEAM Institute. STEAM references the current conversation between art and STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) disciplines. Art as a form of inquiry, as an incubator for collaboration and innovation, and as a fluid framework for interdisciplinary creation reflects the best potential of STEM education.

In Alaska, STEAM is, well....picking up steam. In ASCA's Artist in Schools residencies we see projects based on scientific illustration. The Kodiak Island Borough School District (an ASCA New Visions district) Board of Education is committed to STEAM learning and has included STEAM and specific reference to arts integration in their goals. The Arts Review process during the 2012-2013 school year will focus on the identification of integrated themes that will support teachers in the inclusion of arts learning throughout the K-12 experience for students. The Alaska Arts Education Consortium and the Alaska Society for Technology in Education (ASTE) are developing an ongoing partnership with a focus on professional development for teachers. ASTE included an Artist in Residence at their annual conference in 2012, and is in its third year of the ididacontest, a statewide digital media competition.

In Fairbanks, the first STEAM Institute professional development program will focus on botany, scientific illustration and book-making. Participants will create a collaborative, illustrated botanical book that documents the flora of the local boreal forest. Jan Dawe of the UAF OneTree Project will anchor the scientific inquiry, working with Mareca Guthrie of the UAF Museum of the North on botanical illustration and Margo Klass on book arts. Throughout the Institute, Chris Pastro and Karen Stomberg of FNSBSD will support the exploration of how art/science learning can be integrated into the classroom, for the participants.

Reporting out to the community

OneTree Alaska Image courtesy of UAF School of natural Resources and Agricultural Sciences and Boreal House Art and Science Center

The STEAM Institute developed out of a community interest in the future of the boreal forest, and the development of the OneTree initiative in UAF's School of Natural Resources and Agricultural Sciences (SNRAS). According to a 2011 article in the SNRAS Science and News blog, "OneTree began in July 2009 with the felling of a single birch in the Nenana Ridge forest. Artists, scientists, craftsmen and teachers were standing by to take pieces of the tree to study and use." STEAM Institute instructor Jan Dawe is quoted, "OneTree connects the community to the forest as active stewards. It makes stewardship concrete one tree at a time."

The institute reflects the way in which Boreal House, one of the presenting partners, came together as a cooperative organization, around this concept. According to the website, "The model upon which Boreal House is based is the North House Folk School in Grand Marais, Minnesota. North House Folk School is dedicated to celebrating traditional northern crafts and the joy of learning. Boreal House shares North House Folk School's dedication to the learning and discovery of traditional northern crafts but also hopes to encourage innovation and creative experimentation. Boreal House looks to explore that rich transitional zone between science, art, and design."

"The forest is changing, and we all know it," said Stomberg. "And also there's this aspect of wanting to do science-really good science-in the classroom. There's such an emphasis on literacy and math, and there has to be, but to illuminate the change and cultivate stewardship and respect on one hand, and also to engender a deep aesthetic appreciation for the boreal, gave us the common goal. For me, that's professional development. That's where you get teachers, where you get the stuff to bring into the classroom."

In January of 2011, Fairbanks visual artist Margo Klass gave a workshop at UAF which was very successful, and which Stomberg describes as the first event for Boreal House that really clarified and strengthened the art/science link for the growing cooperative of community members interested in this idea. "She had a birch book workshop. There had been a lot of science workshops with touches of art, but this was a way to really coalesce the art piece. It was like an entry point for really strong art."

Stomberg had also worked with Mareca Guthrie of the Museum of the North through a school residency, and saw the work she did with illustration based on natural history artifacts from the museum. A conversation began about how to get more FNBSD teachers working with the museum and the primary resources housed therein. Stomberg and Dawe were at the same time discussing, "How do we get teachers further down the road with data collection with their kids, and doing the botanical illustration?" Guthrie was an ideal leader for that aspect of the Institute.

Stomberg and her colleague at FNBSD, Chris Pastro, will work alongside the other instructors and the Institute participants to provide classroom integration support. "We'll be there working with teachers on creating specific curriculum for their age/grade level...making the tangible connections to make it work in their classrooms."

Registration is still open for the STEAM Institute. To register, or to find out more about this program and others available through this partnership, contact the Boreal House Art & Science Center at info@borealhouse.org, or by calling (907) 488-4312.

Alaska's 2012 Champion of the Arts Awards Announced!

The AAEC is an affiliation of 27 school districts, diverse organizations and dedicated individuals committed to preparing and supporting Alaska's educators so that they can teach the arts across the curriculum.

Each year the AAEC honors individuals or organizations around the State of Alaska who champion the arts in education. This celebratory action highlights the positive impact of the arts in the lives of our children and youth. The efforts of these "champions" allow Alaskan students the opportunity to achieve greater academic gains and become effective communicators through the arts. AAEC Champions of Arts in Education carry the torch for arts education through high-caliber instruction, arts support, and ongoing arts promotion.

The first Champion of the Arts hails from Southcentral region's Kodiak Island, the 2012 Kodiak Island Borough School District Board of Education: Katie Oliver, Melissa Borton, Peggy Rauwolf, Norm Wooten, Aaron Griffin, CDR Patrick McElligatt, Catherine Le (student representative).

Through supporting the Arts for students, the board is preparing students for their future roles in society as well-rounded, critical thinkers who have recognized the importance of the arts and have benefited from the affective learning that accompanies participation in any of the art forms.

Six years ago the Board made a commitment to reinstate instrumental music/band instruction for students at the 6th grade level. Because of the KIBSD Board's continued efforts, high quality student musical productions, theatrical productions, dance production and visual art shows are enjoyed by the community on a regular basis. From the annual Spring Whale Fest to the High School Dance recitals the community has multitudinous opportunities to share in art being made by community youth.

A second Champion on the Arts comes from the Kenai Peninsula. Elaine Larson is a music, movement and drama specialist in the Kaleidoscope School of Arts and Science, a K-6 public charter school, which she helped to found in the Kenai Peninsula Borough School District (KPBSD).

In 2011, Elaine made a successful proposal to the KPBSD, which allowed her to offer a Level I Orff Schulwerk training course to all borough music teachers. This course was so successful that a level II training has been approved for the summer of 2013.

Hundreds of KPBSD students benefit as a result of the Elaine's Orff Schulwerk training for their music teachers. Through the Orff method, the teachers learn to guide their students to experience music through speech, singing, movement, playing instruments, listening and improvising. These activities, in turn, help students learn to create, understand and enjoy their musical experiences, fostering a lifelong love of music and the arts.

John Sinnok is AAEC's Champion of the Arts from the Arctic Region. John's students have entered carvings and sewing in the Heard Museum All Native Student Art Show in Phoenix, Arizona every year for the last 10 years. His students consistently win 26 to 30 ribbons, sell their artwork, and come home with prize money and awards for the excellence and beauty of their work. They may be the only students representing Alaska at this great event, which takes place each April. Many of John's students subsequently receive $1000 scholarships-renewable with GPAs that meet a high standard-from the Heard Museum when they seek continuing education after high school.

John states that students' self esteem improves through their success with their artwork, and it transfers to a higher success rate in all other subjects. His dedication, resourcefulness, selflessness and consummate ability as both an instructor and artist are clear. John sets a high bar for the quality of work he expects from his students, and he has sustained his program at the Shishmaref School for over 40 years.

A significant number of residents in the community of Shishmaref make and sell crafts as a result of John's instruction at the school. Shishmaref is recognized as a village that produces the highest quality crafts and still carries on the traditional Inupiat lifestyle. Their development as artists over time allows them to contribute to their artistic cultural heritage.

This humble champion has accomplished all those things while being legally blind from a snow machine accident in 1985.

Kirk Garbisch is AAEC's Champion of the Arts from the Southeast Region. The impact Kirk has made for Wrangell and Southeast Alaska is tied to his founding of the Arts Fest, which he started before 1999. Kirk wanted an opportunity for students to share their art with people outside of the island. At first, only a few schools participated in the Art Fest. Budgets were always tight but Kirk stepped in and helped find funding for art supplies and travel to Wrangell. The Art Fest grew and about 6 years ago the Alaska School Activities Association (ASAA) for Region 5 incorporated it under their umbrella. Art Fest is now a shared event in Southeast.

Kirk worked with the Indian Education Act (IEA) employee at the high school to support students of Native descent, working with Native arts. The program provided students materials and access to Native artists. Some of these students were in danger of failing at school. Kirk, and his work on their behalf, helped them to get through difficult years in school.

He is an art teacher and artist in his own right. Most importantly, Kirk has been an art connector: a man who understands that having a quality forum for self-expression is a vital component in students' lives. He has provided that opportunity for his students as well as his colleagues and has left a legacy that will continue.

The Carnegie Hall National Youth Orchestra of the United States of America will have its first season in July 2013. It's a free, annual program for students ages 16-19, and Carnegie Hall would be thrilled to have a deep pool of applicants from all parts of the country.

NYO-USA will be a full symphony orchestra, with 120 players. The program for 2013 runs June 30 through July 23, with a training residency/summer camp near New York City, followed by a tour. The program is tuition-/cost-free for all participants. (Financial assistance will be available in cases where the $30 application fee or the costs of traveling to/from New York for the program present a hardship.) NYO-USA will make an international tour (with stops at the Kennedy Center in Washington, DC; in Russia; and in London) with Valery Gergiev as the conductor. The players will be coached for 2 weeks by an "all-star" faculty of first-chair players from some of the top American orchestras.

The registration and application period opens on June 1, with an initial registration deadline of September 7, 2012. The application must be completed by November 1, 2012. The process will be entirely online with a video audition requirement.

You can find additional information about the NYO-USA on the Carnegie Hall website:

Zion National Park Artist-in-Residence Program

This program offers selected artists the opportunity to live in a historic house located on the Zion Canyon Scenic Drive for a four-week period and pursue their particular art form. As part of the residency, artists will present two public programs and are required to donate, at the park's choosing, an original piece of work representative of their experience. Artists must be self-sufficient, able to work independently in an isolated environment, and comply with all park regulations and policies.

Artists are selected by a jury made up of staff from Zion National Park, faculty from Southern Utah University's College of Performing and Visual Arts, and staff from the Braithewaite Fine Arts Gallery. Selections are made based on the merit of an applicant's work and how the work reflects the mission of Zion National Park and the National Park Service.

Applications for the program can be downloaded from the website www.nps.gov/zion and will be accepted through July 20, 2012. The Artist-in-Residence Program is supported by Zion National Park, in partnership with Zion Natural History Association and Southern Utah University's College of Performing and Visual Arts. More information about the Artist-in-Residence Program can be found at www.nps.gov/zion/supportyourpark/artist-in-residence, and interested artists can contact Jessica Kusky, Artist in Residence Coordinator, by phone at 435-772-0184 or email at Zion_Artist_in_Residence@nps.gov.

Alaska represented by Aryeh Lax at National Poetry Out Loud Competition

Aryeh Lax, a student from Anchorage, Alaska, was among the 53 Poetry Out Loud champions from every state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands who participated in the National Finals of Poetry Out Loud: National Recitation Contest. Held in Washington, DC, on May 14-15, 2012, the national poetry recitation contest was sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Poetry Foundation. For the National Finals, Aryeh Lax presented 2 poems including "First Poem for You" by Kim Addonizio and "A Boat Beneath a Sunny Sky" by Lewis Carroll.

Aryeh, a student at Steller Secondary School in Anchorage, received an all-expenses-paid trip to compete in the National Finals after advancing from high school and state-level competitions. "It was really amazing to meet teenagers from around the country who were all so passionate about poetry. These are absolutely the next generation of poets and speakers, and it's great that there's an organization out there working to encourage these kids and connect them with other like minds," said Aryeh after participating in the National Finals.

At the end of April, the National Governors Association announced the release of New Engines of Growth: Five Roles for Arts, Culture and Design. The report, prepared in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts and NASAA, focuses on the role that arts, culture, and design can play in assisting states as they seek to create jobs, boost their economies and, over time, transition to an innovation-based economy. Specifically, the report identifies five ways in which arts, culture and design can assist states with economic growth by:

1. Providing a fast-growth, dynamic industry cluster;
2. Helping mature industries become more competitive;
3. Providing critical ingredients for innovative places;
4. Catalyzing community revitalization; and
5. Delivering a better-prepared workforce.

State arts agencies are acknowledged throughout the report as having established many of the featured programs and policies that embrace these strategies to enhance states' economic growth. We encourage you to use the report as a means of promoting the arts as an economic asset in your state.

In May, the NEA Art Works Blog included the following items about the relationship between art and science.

Moving ArtScience into the Mainstream: A look at what is needed to develop ArtScience into an established field.

New Art/Science Affinities: During a curatorial research fellowship, Andrea Grover observed that artists, increasingly functioning as scientists, "are no longer operating on the periphery of research but conducting research themselves."

Art Works Podcast: Jonah Lehrer: In this excerpt from the podcast, Lehrer explains how the architecture of Pixar Studios (specifically the bathrooms) fosters creativity and collaboration within the company. [1:38]

Art and Inquiry at the Exploratorium: The Exploratorium's Marina McDougall discusses recent efforts to understand "the nature of learning through the arts."

Making Science Intimate: Translating and Integrating the Arts and Humanities with Biology and Medicine: A look at how art can be used to find cultural and personal meaning within the field of medicine.

The Imagine Engine! Or Art and Science- A True Story: Bill O'Brien examines the many parallels between artists and scientists, and shares how the NEA is helping to increase collaboration between science and the arts.

Arts Education Partnership introduces ArtsEdSearch

At the AEP Spring National Forum, one of the highlights was the roll-out of the arts education research clearinghouse, ArtsEdSearch. ArtsEdSearch is a project of the Arts Education Partnership (AEP), and builds on Critical Links: Learning in the Arts and Student Academic and Social Development, a compendium of research that AEP published in 2002 exploring the impact of arts education on student success in school, life, and work. Critical Links identified a range of outcomes of arts learning-including students' development of skills for creative thinking, problem solving, communication, and collaboration-which are of central interest today, not only to the arts education field, but more broadly to education policymakers and leaders concerned with preparing students to succeed in the changing contexts of the 21st Century. AEP has developed ArtsEdSearch as a resource for policymakers and education stakeholders and leaders to better understand and articulate the role that arts education can play in meeting this challenge. ArtsEdSearch is designed to be an interactive, living resource that will grow and evolve along with arts and education research and practice.

North Pole tenth grader named finalist in Google art contest

North Pole High School's own Alexa Marie Bisso, 17, has been named the Alaska winner of Google's 2012 "Doodle 4 Google" contest, open to K-12 students nationwide. The contest challenged students to come up with their own redesigned Google homepage logo.

Google says it held the contest because as a company, it believes in the power of creative thinking and "that dreaming about future possibilities leads to tomorrow's leaders and inventors." The theme of this year's contest was "If I could travel in time, I'd visit..."

Bisso's imagination went straight to Victorian England. Her Google Doodle, titled "A Jolly Trip to Old Victorian Age," features a Victorian-style church, a bicyclist, a steam locomotive, and of course, the Queen herself, whom Bisso's entry says she'd like to meet.

Now, online voting has begun to help determine national finalists and eventually an overall winner from the pool of 50 state finalists.
